STACK DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF MISSING GIRL

Former Cornell Athlete Is Located at Hartford Hotel

QUESTION HIM

States He Left Northampton Two Months Before Miss Smith's Disappearance

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Jan. 24 (I. N. S.)—Fifty State troopers today searched Cape Cod for Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College student.

The search was started following information given to Brigadier General Alfred E. Foote, commissioner of public safety, that a girl closely resembling Miss Smith stopped for four hours at a Buzzard's Bay hotel a week ago today and then boarded a train for this town.

The family of the missing girl revealed today that she once vacationed at the estate of a New York friend on Juniper Point, the fashionable summer colony here.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 24 (I. N. S.)—John Paul Stack, former high jumper at Cornell University and later manager of a local inn on the edge of Smith College campus, was located today at a hotel in Hartford, Conn.

Stack said he knew nothing of the disappearance of Miss Frances St. John Smith.

Stack said that he left Northampton on November 1st, more than two months before Miss Smith disappeared.

The former Cornell athlete stated that he did not know Miss Smith who was only a freshman. He added that he was acquainted with several Smith College girls students.

On advice of relatives Stack was in seclusion at the Hartford hotel.

State police explained that there had been and was nothing to connect Stack with the disappearance of Miss Smith, that they simply wanted to talk with him concerning certain phases of the Smith case.

Stack was interviewed by State Detective Joseph V. Daly, in charge of the state investigation in the Smith case, Major Thomas J. Hammond, council representing Miss Smith's parents, and a relative of Stack's.

Stack told the interviewers that he was ready to assist in any way in locating Miss Smith but that he did not know her.

Before leaving here over two months before Miss Smith vanished, Stack was a guest at Draper Hotel, Northampton.

A girl resembling Miss Smith had been reported to the police as seen outside the Draper in an automobile with Ohio registration plates on Friday, Jan. 13th, the day she disappeared.

On Sunday, Jan. 16th a girl answering Miss Smith's description was reported in a drug store at Hartford, Conn., and in a church in that city.

Tendered Farewell Party On Eve of Departure

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moss, of 634 Beaver street, were pleasantly surprised by a number of neighbors and friends on Sunday evening.

The guests were entertained with several musical selections, the songs, "Side by Side," and "My Blue Heaven," rendered by Mr. Ernest Moss and Miss Irene Sharp. Mrs. Moss sang "The Lost Chord" and later in the evening gave a recitation. Mrs. William E. Davis gave a Negro impersonation, with recitations and songs, "Wonderful Eric" and "Old Times Gone By Down on the Plantation."

At a late hour refreshments were served. The guests were:

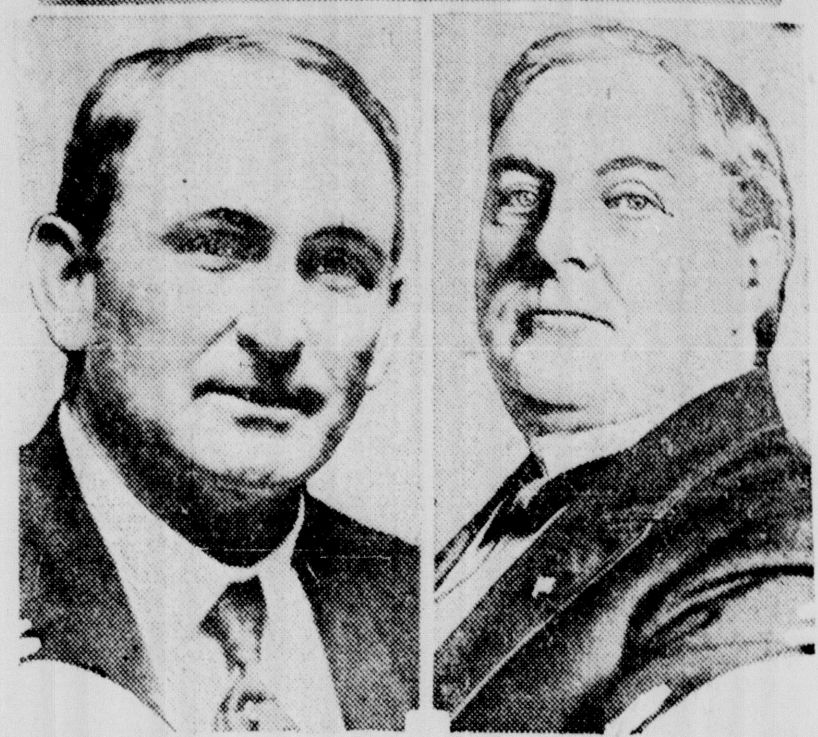

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moss, Mr. Ernest Moss, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Baxte, and daughter, Irene, Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp and daughter, Irene, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pope, Mrs. L. E. Pope, Mrs. Gertrude Pope.

This social gathering was a farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. Moss. Mr. Moss, who for the past year has had charge of one of the Departments of the William H. Grundy Co., Inc., has severed his connections with the firm and has accepted a position as superintendent with a firm in McCasville, Conn.

Mr. Moss will leave next week, while Mrs. Moss and son will remain for several weeks.

DEMOCRATS' DOVE OF PEACE FLIES

More Attention to Bone and Joint Cases Is Urged

SUN GIVES MUCH AID

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24 (I. N. S.)—Early diagnosis of cases of incipient tuberculosis is essential in a successful campaign against the dread disease, Dr. James M. Anders, of Philadelphia, said here this afternoon at the opening session of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society.

Dr. Anders referred to the special campaign for early diagnosis which will be carried on in March by tuberculosis organizations in co-operation with medical societies and other agencies. He pleaded for co-operation between local agencies and county medical organizations to help stamp out the disease.

"Every tuberculosis organization should strive to find the causes in its territory and should arrange for examination of all contacts by the family doctor."

The Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society has two objectives in view, he said: To assist in the fight against tuberculosis by preventing its spread from those ill of the disease to the healthy, and to promote the general health of the public.

More attention to bone and joint tuberculosis cases was urged by Mrs. Gertrude L. Hutchins, executive secretary of the Lackawanna branch of the Society. She said such cases constituted ten to fifteen per cent. of the tuberculosis population.

"Such cases have not received emphasis in anti-tuberculosis work and institutions are not sufficiently equipped for their care. Local hospitals turn down many cases because they are chronic."

"These patients are cared for by members of their family under dangerous conditions," she said. "Surgery can cure many joint cases that otherwise are hopeless. Sunshine treatment is a most valuable curative agent. Our sanatorium should make provision for this type of case as well as pulmonary."

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24 (I. N. S.)—Hail Lindbergh, Pennsylvanian! Zealous Pennsylvania historians, searching musty records, have traced Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's ancestry back to Robert Land, pioneer Wayne County settler, according to the Pennsylvania Federation of Historical Societies.

The report shows that Lindbergh is a direct descendant of Land, whose home, "Old Red House," figured prominently in early Wayne County history.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24 (I. N. S.)—Never allow your judgment to be guided by the words, "they say," when applied to personal health.

That's the warning broadcast by Dr. Theodore B. Appel, State Secretary of Health. Dr. Appel claims those two words have caused frequent failure to follow sound medical advice.

The human inclination to demand facts in abstract cases but to follow what "they say" when applied to personal character, stocks, dividends and cases is a paradox to the health guardian.

"Quacks, patent medicine ads, even your friends next door will 'they say' you about your physical condition. They will 'they say' you about the efficiency of potions and pills until you are inclined to believe that miracles have been reinstated on this earth."

The wise person, however, will seek for a more solid foundation for his health condition than "they say." He will act only on the advice of a thoroughly competent physician."

Exceptional Musical Programs To Be Given At The Grand

Last night at the Grand Theatre Miss Blanche Washburn, the nationally known organist, of the popular and beautiful playhouse, rendered a series of Southern airs as a prologue to the showing of the famous feature picture, "Cameo Kirby," starring John Gilbert. This picture is having a two-day run at the Grand at popular prices.

Miss Washburn's rendition of the beautiful Southern melodies was much appreciated by the large audience which was present at both performances. It clearly demonstrated to the people of Bristol and vicinity that good music well rendered can be heard and enjoyed here just as well as at the largest theatres of the country.

Miss Washburn is without a doubt one of the most finished organists who has ever been heard in this section. Her selections last night were far above those which are generally heard in theaters other than those of the Stanley group or Roxy in New York.

Manager Lynn has inaugurated this week as the beginning of a series of music classics, which will be presented from now on at the Grand. The same program will be continued tonight.

Tomorrow night and Thursday evening there will be a most appropriate musical prologue to the feature picture "Becky" with Sally O'Neil and Owen Moore in the leading roles. Friday evening Helene Chadwick in "The Rose of Kildare" will afford Miss Washburn an opportunity to carry out the beautiful strains of Old Ireland. The people of Bristol are fortunate in having such a beautiful theater equipped with such a magnificent instrument as the big three manual Kimball organ and played by such an accomplished musician.

BRISTOL HIGH MEETS AMBLER

Many Fishermen Get Their Licenses For 1928

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24—The Board of Fish Commissioners reports that from the number of resident licenses issued up to this time, it would indicate that it was the month of March and not January. Usually very few licenses are issued before the 15th of March.

The extremely good weather which prevailed for several weeks brought out a host of sucker fishermen and good catches were made. Flies have been reported over some of the trout streams and all indications point toward a mighty good opening of the trout season.

With the opening of spring weather, the board expects to start construction work on the two new sites purchased for hatcheries in Forest and Bedford counties, and with the increase in the resident license fee from $1.00 to $1.50 great progress should be made on these two sites.

HULMEVILLE SCOUTS HAVE AN INVESTITURE SERVICE

Approximately 100 Witness The Impressive Ceremony Held Last Night

LANGHORNE TROOP THE

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 24—Approximately 100 witnessed the impressive investiture services of Hulmeville Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, in the I. O. O. F. Lodge room here last evening, the group being comprised of the candidates, scout committee, county officers, parents and friends.

The investiture was in charge of the boys of Langhorne Troop, No. 1, under Scoutmaster Joseph Lindenfeller; while a very important part was taken in the program by County Scout Executive William Livermore.

The charter was presented to the scout committee, headed by chairman Samuel J. Illick, by Mr. Livermore, who congratulated those who take an active part as well as the populace at large on the progress made in scouting in the borough under Scoutmaster Lloyd Bucher and his assistant, Richard Hopkins. Other members of the scout committee of the town are: Rev. Walter H. Canon, Albert C. Kaufman, Samuel K. Faust, Charles Haeftner, Lester Longhurst, Thomas B. Longhurst, and the Rev. John Raymond Crosby. The charter was applied for by the two churches of the town—Neshaminy M. E., and Grace Episcopal.

One of the unique features of the program was a demonstration on the 12 points of the scout law by boys of the Hulmeville Troop. This work was outlined and acted entirely by the scouts.

The assembly was greeted by Samuel J. Illick, who told of how much the boys are benefited through the effort of those interested in scouting, and asked for a continuance of the interest. Songs were indulged in by the group and Langhorne scouts gave their camp song. The opening prayer was made by Jesse C. Everett, president of the local camp, P. O. S. of A., and the salute to the colors later in the evening was also led by Mr. Everett.

The following honors were awarded by Mr. Livermore: Arm insignias to patrol leaders, Albert Dakin, Harold Haeftner, and Charles Thorpe; arm insignias to assistant patrol leaders, Arthur Kaufman, Thomas Thorpe and

CELTICS HAND Y. M. A. 1ST DEFEAT OF SEASON

K. of C. Surpasses Leedom's By Defeating Them By Score of 24 to 16

GAME CLOSELY PLAYED

By T. M. Juno

The Celtic five handed the Y. M. A. their first defeat of the season last night by the score of 14 to 11. In the other game of the night the K. of C. surpassed Leedom's by beating them 24 to 16.

In defeating the Y. M. A. the "Celts" showed fine teamwork and a wonderful passing system that had the Y. M. A. completely baffled.

The game was very interesting and closely played. Though the game was a see-saw battle neither team had more than a three-point lead at any stage of the game.

Bailey, forward of the Y. M. A., was high scorer for this game, scoring all but two points. The Y. M. A. quintet showed a fine fighting spirit.

Foul shooting seemed to be the weak points of both teams—Y. M. A. made 4 foul shots out of 15 tries while Celts made 4 fouls out of 13 tries.

In the other battle of the night the K. of C. stopped the three-game winning streak of the fast going Leedom team by defeating them in a fast game, 24-16. The carpet-makers lost their chance of climbing into first place which would have been the result had they won this game.

The Knights jumped into the lead from the opening tap-off and kept it throughout the game.

"Big" Jim Sweeney showed up to last year's form by caring five field goals through the net. Troit played best for the losers. The game was evenly played on both sides. The Knights fouled the Leedom players (Continued on Page Four)

Prospective life insurance agents always outnumber those in other lines at least four to one. At the last regular series of examinations 415 applicants to sell life insurance qualified as opposed to 69 for fire and 102 for casualty insurance.

State News

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 24 (I.N.S.)—The little village of Hancock, near here, which recently found itself in the nation's limelight by barring the sale of bottles, caps and corks as a dry enforcement measure, today is making a determined stand for "municipal rights."

This time the village is up in arms against Governor Albert C. Ritchie, demanding that the Town Commissioners be allowed to pass on a proposed justice of the peace before the governor appoints him.

As an immediate result of this stand, the town is without a magistrate and town ordinances. Furthermore, no revenue comes to the town coffers from fines.

Mayor John T. Mason, spokesman for the embattled Commissioners, says, "I'm just as ardent an advocate of rights for municipalities as Governor Ritchie is for State's rights."

"Hancock and four other towns in the state have their magistrate appointed by the Governor on the recommendation of the State Central committee or some other 'rump' committee, members of which may reside fifty miles from the town."

"The town Commissioners of Hancock will continue to refuse recognition to gubernatorial appointees not recommended by them."

So Hancock, a community of 900 persons, makes shift without a magistrate or town ordinances, both Mayor and Commissioners being determined their approval will precede such appointments.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24 (I.N.S.)—Thirty-two of the sixty-four revocations of automobile drivers' licenses announced today by the State Department of Highways were caused by intoxication. Fourteen additional names have been added to the official blacklist.

Thirteen licenses revoked were for reckless driving.

Those who lost licenses for intoxication included C. A. Wiseman, New Castle; Charles Draper, Chester; Woodworth Jones, Greenville and Russell D. Frace, Easton.

Samuel J. McFerguson, Erie and William Roehl, Bethlehem, both lost licenses for failure to stop and render assistance after an accident. The licenses of Eva S. Holliday, Bristol, and Ellen M. Rupell, Easton, were revoked because of physical incapacitation.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 24 (I.N.S.)—Although slight improvement is noted in some lines of industry the employment offices of the State Department of Labor and Industry continue to be filled with applicants for jobs, especially from semi-skilled and unskilled workers.

Detailed reports from each of the offices made public here indicated that the forecast improvement in industrial conditions has been slow to materialize.

Very little improvement was reported from the metal and metal products industries. The greater portion of the large steel mills are operating far below capacity and factories making metal products are for the most part on reduced working schedules.

Extremely cold weather at the beginning of the month resulted in a slight increase in the demand for anthracite, but not sufficient to affect the labor situation. Many of the smaller mines remain closed although the operators are reported optimistic of the results of the "Boost Anthracite" campaign.

A slight increase in the sale of bituminous is reported. Additional small mines have reopened. Increased activity at the mines always is reflected in the transportation lines in the field.

Most cities report good building and construction activity and the majority of the textile factories are showing improvement, especially those making rayon and artificial silk.

The greatest calamity that could come over this country would be a return to the use of liquor under the sanction of the law. SYNOPSIS

Myra Martin, secretary to Leonard Gilbert, a prominent divorce lawyer to whom she is engaged, is guardian to her younger sister, Helene. In Gilbert's office Helene meets Huntley Sheldon, a notorious rascal, whose wife, Nita, is making a fourth attempt to divorce him. Helene, although interested in Ralph Naylor, is fascinated by Sheldon, and against Myra's warnings, accepts an invitation to his hunting lodge. Myra, discovering where her sister is going, locks Helene in her room, disguises herself, and goes to the lodge, representing herself as a member of the Young Girl's Welfare League.

At the name of his expected visitor Sheldon gasped. "How did you find out about Helene Martin?" He stared fixedly at the woman before him. Somehow, the name brought a string of remembrances to his mind. Martin—Martin. He kept repeating the name to himself as though it was going to help him solve the mystery.

"That's my—our business," Myra drew herself up primly, her mouth set in a straight line. "We find out a great many things in many ways. However, it doesn't matter how we found out. We know. And you're going to write a letter right now to Miss Martin, telling this innocent little girl that you never wish to see her again!"

Sheldon laughed. "She's not so darned innocent—" Myra gave him no time to finish his sentence. His words infuriated her. Her eyes flashed. "How dare you!" She gasped. She clenched her hands, tight, to keep her head. For that brief second, she had dropped the pose. "You'll write that letter," she spoke vehemently, "or I'll inform your wife and the juvenile authorities!"

"How did you find out about Helene, Martin?"

Myra fell back into her role, but the second had been enough to give Sheldon his clue. Martin—Martin! That was it. That's what he had been trying to remember. A sudden, swift vision of Helene, sitting on a desk, swinging her feet, and behind her, her sister, Myra Martin! That was it!

Suddenly, without warning, Sheldon clutched at his heart. "My God!" he moaned. "O, my God!" and staggered to the lounge, falling back among the cushions.

CHAPTER VII

Myra stared helplessly, frightened by the man on the sofa. His lips moved, as though he were trying to speak, and his face was distorted in an agony of pain. His eyes rolled back until the gray pupils were almost lost beneath the lids. His hands twitched convulsively. His breath came heavily, spasmodically. Very feebly he made a slight gesture. At the sign Myra was galvanized into action. She ran towards the sofa and bent over the prone figure on the couch. "Mr. Sheldon! Mr. Sheldon, what is it? What's the matter? Can I get something?" She hadn't the slightest idea what had happened, save that the man seemed to be having a heart attack, and she wasn't sure what one did in such cases. But he still seemed to be trying to tell her something. Perhaps something he needed. She bent still closer to catch his mumbled words.

"The brown bottle—" He seemed unable to say more.

"Yes, Mr. Sheldon, the brown bottle—where?" Myra caught the anguished glance in the gray eyes, and in spite of her dislike for the man, she could not help but feel sorry. He seemed to be in such agony.

"The brown bottle," he gasped, "in the medicine—the medicine closet."

"I'll get it—right away. Just be still." Myra flew up the stairs, across the balcony, and into the

ROBERTSON THINKS HIS CHANCES GOOD

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24.—Lawson Robertson, head coach of the American Olympic team, looked on the bright side of things today and, as he fondly contemplated our chances at Amsterdam this summer, his exuberance simply got the better of him and he let himself out in sheer despotism. It was gathered, when masculine self control had been regained, that America would hold its international championship, if at all, only because of its control of the field events.

Otherwise, it seemed, the outlook was almost as bright as the interior of an ex-shoe. In tones of gentle melancholia, he conveyed the information that there isn't much in the way of startling material coming up for the 1928 team and that there is even less holding over from the 1924 champions.

He thinks the Germans are due to cut our Paris score by about thirty points and that that may be enough to make us finish a very game but losing second.

"There were no Germans on the scene at Paris and we placed four men at 100 metres, ran one-two at 200 metres and placed two men in the 400-metre race," Robertson stated with enthusiasm, like a man paying the rent. "There will be plenty of them at Amsterdam and they will score in the only races in which we made a respectable showing last time—the sprints."

"They have four men, Koernig, Cortis, Houben and Wege, who are the equal of anything in the sprints we have or will have. The other foreign nations are just as strong or stronger than they were at Paris. We won then with some thirty-five points to spare. In the meantime, barring the development of Lloyd Hahn, some field men and one hurdler, we have stood still. We have no prospect of developing men for the track events over 1,500-metres and I include that race only because of Hahn."

"Lastly, owing to the exigencies created by the sending of other sport groups, our team will be the smallest in history."

Yes, the gentleman surely isn't bowed down under a burden of joy. As I gather it, we will win only in the event that we don't lose and even then he suspects there is a catch in it somewhere. Anyhow, he can see not more than twenty men in prospect as probable point getters at the Amsterdam games, and for my part, I want to say that I have seen full many a probable point become an impossible one in less than six months.

Those cited by Robertson as tangible legacies from the 1924 group were Paddock and Scholz in the sprints; Hahn in the 800 and 1,500 metre runs; Houser in the shot and discus; Osborn in the high jump and decathlon; Hubbard in the broad jump and hop, step and jump; Barnes in the pole vault; Taylor in the 400 metre hurdle event and De Mar in the marathon. Others not so stifling, so to speak, are Hussey in the sprints; Enck, Helfrich and Watson in the middle distances; McGrath in the weights; Romig in the 5,000-metre run and Guthrie in the hurdles.

BILLY'S UNCLE

Wages and Tariff Keys To U. S. Prosperity

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—High wages and high tariff are essential for the reservation of prosperity in America, Samuel M. Vauchain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and one of the Nation's leading industrial captains, told the Chicago Association of Credit Men last night.

Wages should not be governed solely by supply and demand, Mr. Vauchain asserted, but should be placed at a level which would enable workers to buy the necessities of life.

"It is the wage earner who constitutes the great majority of our population," he said. "These people are the spenders of the Nation, and upon their ability to spend freely, the general business of our country depends."

Mr. Vauchain declared importations of manufactured articles deprived American laborers of employment and consequent wages. Foreign importations should be avoided by all, he said. "We may profit individually by buying foreign goods at less than American manufacturers can produce, but the injurious consequences to general business more than offsets the selfish gain."

"A protective tariff is necessary if we are to have full dinner pails for our boys during 1928 and the years," he insisted, "to come."

You will be more than pleased with letterheads, statements, envelopes, etc., printed at this office. Our corps of workers is capable of filling your wants in a short period of time.

Fire School Instructors Give Interesting Lessons

With Lieutenant Garner, of the Philadelphia Fire School, in charge, a class of about forty men attached to Engine Companies Nos. 1 and 2, went through a series of instructions last night at the fire house. Captain Joyce, of Engine Co. No. 1, and Captain Buck, of Engine Co. No. 2, related to Lieutenant Garner their experiences at the practical fire drills last Saturday afternoon, at the conclusion of which, Lieutenant Garner both complimented and corrected them on various points as related to him.

He then asked questions as to how certain fires should be approached and fought, and received answers from the members which he said proved they were taking a great interest in fire fighting. Captain Luck then asked the Lieutenant to again demonstrate the "improvised ladder hose," as there were a few who would like to get better acquainted with it. Lieutenant Garner then put the class through a practical demonstration of this particular unit and stated that it was a mighty handy thing to know in case of emergency, where ship-hold and cellar fires could not be faced by firemen owing to intense heat but which could be readily and easily held by means of this improvised ladder hose. After demonstrating just how to break and connect extra hose in case of emergency he dismissed the class to attend the practical gas mask demonstration in the basement of the fire house.

Captain Krouse had charge of the ladder company's class, which was also well attended, and after a series of extensive instruction in fighting fires from a ladder company's viewpoint, he also turned his class over to the demonstrator of the gas mask test.
